

Privacy notice for California residents

This privacy notice for California residents (notice) supplements the information contained in the privacy policies of The Vanguard Group, Inc. and its U.S. affiliates and subsidiaries (collectively, Vanguard or us), and applies solely to visitors, users, and others who reside in the State of California (consumers or you). We provide this notice to comply with the California Consumer Privacy Act of 2018 (CCPA) and the regulations issued under it; accordingly, this notice addresses the specific requirements of the CCPA and should be read together with the other Vanguard privacy policies that apply based on your relationships with us. Any terms defined in the CCPA have the same meaning when used in this notice; that may differ from what those terms mean when we use them in other policies or disclosures.

1. Your rights

The CCPA provides specific privacy rights to California residents, including the right to receive a privacy notice, the right to know what personal information we have collected about you during the past 12 months, the right to know what categories of personal information we have shared with unaffiliated third parties, the right to opt out of having your personal information sold, and the right (with certain exceptions) to request deletion of your personal information that is covered by the CCPA. More information about how to exercise your rights is provided below.

We collect information that identifies, relates to, describes, is reasonably capable of being associated with, or could reasonably be linked, directly or indirectly, with a particular consumer or household (personal information). As used in this notice, personal information does not include aggregate or deidentified information or publicly available information from government records. Personal information also generally excludes information we obtain in connection with providing financial products or services to our Personal Investor clients primarily for personal, family, or household use. Rather, that information is protected under federal law through the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act. Although that type of information isn't subject to the consumer rights provided by the CCPA, Vanguard offers various options for accessing and reviewing the information maintained in connection with your accounts and Vanguard relationships. You can review your information on your statements and other account documents, as well as through our automated phone services and our websites. You may also email or call us with your request for information. Our contact information is provided in Section 10 at the end of this notice.

The CCPA includes other exceptions and exemptions that may limit your ability to exercise CCPA rights for certain types of personal information and certain kinds of relationships between a consumer and Vanguard. For your security, we will not return personal information outside the scope of the CCPA in response to an access request, except as otherwise required by law. You have the right to request that an agent submit a request to exercise your rights on your behalf. We require that your agent provide a notarized statement from you authorizing your agent to take the requested action. We reserve the right to contact you directly if we have any questions or concerns about the agent's submission. See Section 8 below for additional information.

2. CCPA right-to-know disclosures

The table below explains the categories of personal information we collect from California residents generally, the sources of that information, the purposes for which we use the information, and the categories of unaffiliated parties to whom we disclose the information. In doing so, we use the term everyday business purposes. For purposes of this notice, the term everyday business purposes encompasses the business purposes defined in the CCPA, as well as the following related purposes for which Vanguard may use personal information:

- To provide the information, product, or service you request or as you may reasonably expect given the context in which we collect the personal information (such as providing client service, personalization, and preference management; providing updated product and service information; and dispute resolution);
- For identity and credential management, including identity verification and authentication and system and technology administration;
- To protect the security and integrity of our systems, networks, applications, and data, including detecting, analyzing, and resolving security threats, and collaborating with cybersecurity centers, consortia, and law enforcement about imminent threats;
- For fraud detection and prevention;
- For legal and regulatory compliance, including all uses and disclosures of personal information required by law or reasonably needed for compliance with our policies and procedures, such as: anti-money laundering programs, security and incident response programs, intellectual property protection programs, and corporate ethics and compliance hotlines;
- For corporate audit, analysis, and reporting;
- To enforce our contracts and to protect against injury, theft, legal liability, fraud, or abuse, and to protect people or property, including physical security programs;
- To deidentify personal information or create aggregated datasets, such as for consolidating reporting, research, or analytics;
- To make back-up copies for business continuity and disaster recovery purposes; and
- For corporate governance, including mergers, acquisitions, and divestitures.

When we disclose personal information for a business purpose to service suppliers not affiliated with Vanguard (service suppliers), we enter into a contract that describes the purpose and requires the service supplier, among other requirements, to both keep that personal information confidential and not use it for any purpose except performing the contract. In some circumstances, we engage service suppliers to assist us in providing our services, but we may not actually receive the information the service supplier maintains about you or associate that information with your Vanguard account or client profile. For example, we may use a service supplier to assist us with identity verification for fraud prevention purposes, but that service supplier may furnish us with a score or risk rating, rather than with the personal information it has about you.

We and our digital advertising providers (digital advertising providers) collect certain information from your devices when you visit our sites, through cookies and other technologies, including technologies designed for mobile applications. We provide (or enable digital advertising providers to collect) the following categories of information about you: unique identifiers, and online and technical/usage information (including, for example, cookie ID, advertising ID, IP address, and device ID). We and our digital advertising providers use this information to deliver Vanguard ads that may be of interest to you on other sites that you visit. Our sharing such information with certain digital advertising providers may be considered a “sale” under the CCPA. As noted in the table below, we do not sell personal information about children under 16. If you are a California resident, the CCPA allows you to tell us to stop sharing certain information with third parties. See Section 6 below for additional information. Vanguard does not sell your personal information for payment or any other compensation.

3. Access to specific information and data portability rights

You have the right to request that we disclose certain information to you about our collection and use of your personal information over the past 12 months. Once we receive and confirm your verifiable consumer request, we will disclose the following to you (unless an exception applies):

- The categories of personal information we collected about you.
- The categories of sources for the personal information we collected about you.
- Our business or commercial purpose for collecting that personal information.
- The categories of third parties with whom we share that personal information.
- The specific pieces of personal information we collected about you.

4. Deletion request rights

You have the right to request that we delete your personal information we collected about you and retained, subject to certain exceptions. Once we receive and confirm your verifiable consumer request, we will delete or deidentify (and direct our service suppliers to delete or deidentify) your personal information from our records, unless an exception applies.

We may deny your deletion request if retaining the personal information is necessary for us or our service suppliers to:

- Complete a transaction for which we collected the personal information, provide a good or service that you requested, take actions reasonably anticipated within the context of our ongoing business relationship with you, or otherwise perform our contract with you.
- Detect security incidents; protect against malicious, deceptive, fraudulent, or illegal activity; or prosecute those responsible for such activities.
- Debug products to identify and repair errors that impair existing intended functionality.
- Comply with the California Electronic Communications Privacy Act (Cal. Penal Code § 1546 et seq.).

- Enable solely internal uses that are reasonably aligned with your expectations based on your relationship with us.
- Comply with a legal obligation.
- Make other internal and lawful uses of that information that are compatible with the context in which you provided it.

5. Exercising access and deletion rights

If you are a California resident, you may exercise the access and deletion rights described above by submitting a verifiable consumer request to us by either:

- Visiting here; or
- Calling us:
  - Personal investors: 800-984-5939
  - Retirement plan participants: 800-523-1188
  - Institutional investors: 800-523-1036
  - Financial professionals: 800-997-2798

If you have an account with us, please have your account information available when you call or log in to our secure website to facilitate verification. Only you or a person you authorize to act for you may make a verifiable consumer request related to your personal information. If you are exercising access or deletion rights on behalf of another person, you will be required to provide documentation authorizing you to act as agent with us. See Section 8 below for more information. You may also make a verifiable consumer request on behalf of your minor child. These rights are subject to some limitations, such as when we are retaining data to comply with our own legal obligations; and not all of the personal information we collect about you is subject to the CCPA.

You may make a verifiable consumer request for access only twice within a 12-month period. The verifiable consumer request must:

- Provide sufficient information that allows us to reasonably verify that you are the person about whom we collected personal information or an authorized agent; and
- Describe your request with sufficient detail that allows us to properly understand, evaluate, and respond to it.

We cannot respond to your request or provide personal information to you if we cannot verify your identity or authority to make the request and confirm that the personal information relates to you. Making a verifiable consumer request does not require you to create an account with us. We will use personal information you provide in a verifiable consumer request only to verify the requester's identity or authority to make the request and to maintain a record of your request.

Response timing and format

We strive to respond to a verifiable consumer request within 45 days of its receipt. If we require more time (up to 90 days), we will inform you in writing of the reason and extension period. If you have an account with us, we will deliver our written response through that account. If you do not have an account with us, we will deliver our written response by mail or electronically, at your option. Any disclosures we provide may cover only the 12-month period preceding our receipt of the verifiable consumer request. Our response will also explain why we cannot comply with a request, if applicable.

We do not charge a fee to process or respond to your verifiable consumer request unless it is excessive, repetitive, or manifestly unfounded. If we determine that the request warrants a fee, we will tell you why we made that decision and provide a cost estimate to you before completing your request.

6. When we sell your information and your right to opt out

We and our digital advertising providers collect certain information from your devices when you visit our sites, through cookies and other technologies, including technologies designed for mobile applications. We provide (or enable digital advertising providers to collect) the following categories of information about you: unique identifiers, online and technical information/usage information (including, for example, cookie ID, advertising ID, IP address, and device ID). We and our digital advertising providers use this information to deliver Vanguard ads that may be of interest to you on other sites that you visit. Our sharing such information with certain digital advertising providers may be considered a “sale” under the CCPA. If you are a California resident, the CCPA allows you to tell us to stop sharing certain information with third parties. Vanguard does not sell your personal information for payment or any other compensation.

If you wish to opt out of sharing your information in connection with our interest-based advertising described above, please visit <http://optout.aboutads.info/> and follow the opt out instructions for each of your browsers and devices. If you opt out of sharing this information, we will not deliver ads based on your interests and activity, but you will still receive ads. Note that any choice you make here will only affect this browser and device. Because your opt-out preferences are stored in cookies, if you reset your advertising ID or clear your cookies, we will no longer recognize your device or your choices, so you must opt out again. To opt back in to interest-based advertising, visit <http://optout.aboutads.info/> again and select your preferences.

7. Non-discrimination

We will not discriminate against you for exercising any of your CCPA rights. Unless permitted by the CCPA, we will not:

- Deny you products or services.
- Charge you different prices or rates for products or services as compared to other Vanguard clients, including through granting discounts or other benefits, or imposing penalties.
- Provide you a different level or quality of products or services than that provided to other Vanguard clients.
- Suggest that you may receive a different price or rate for products or services or a different level or quality of products or services than other Vanguard clients.

8. Authorized agent

If you seek to exercise CCPA access or deletion rights on behalf of another person, you must confirm that the person has authorized you to act as their agent under the CCPA by providing us with a completed, signed, and notarized CCPA Agent Authorization Form.

9. Changes to this notice

We reserve the right to amend this notice at our discretion and at any time. When we make changes to it, we will inform you through a notice on our website Privacy Center.

10. Contact information

If you have any questions relating to this notice or concerns about how we have handled your personal information, please email us at privacy@vanguard.com. You may also call us at the phone numbers listed in Section 5 above.
